STRATEGIC APPROACHES

High-impact programs and projects often intentionally incorporate certain strategic approaches that improve outcomes. The Northland Foundation encourages inclusion of one or more of the following components to the work that we consider funding.

- Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Actively working to reach and fully reflect the diversity of communities served, facilitate inclusion, and counter systemic inequity.
- Multi-Generational Considering the needs of multiple generations when addressing an issue e.g. programs for children that include components for parents and guardians.
- Collaboration Bringing other partners into a program or project in order to tap others' expertise, expand geographic or demographic reach, and/or improve outcomes.
- Multi-Sector Engaging organizations from diverse sectors and disciplines in program design and delivery.
- Systems Change Seeking to change public policy and increase the civic engagement of under-represented populations.

The Northland Foundation also offers grants through the Minnesota Power Foundation Youth In Philanthropy Program. Students in grades 7-12 with adult mentors from throughout the region comprise the grantmaking board. Community groups, schools, and nonprofit organizations may submit grant proposals of up to $1,000 for youth-driven projects.
